

DIXON HUGHES PLLC

Certified Public Accountants and Advisors

Construction News InContext | February 2008

CONSTRUCTION EXECUTIVE CONFERENCE UPDATE

Construction companies have to be fast to adapt to the latest techniques and obligations while wisely remembering the principles that got them to where they are. Ideas and important movements are swift and sometimes hard to grasp much less implement.

At the Construction Executive Conference, Dixon Hughes industry experts offer vital presentations and solutions each year to address the changing and critical needs of contractors. Additionally, attorneys, bankers, technology experts, surety experts, economic experts, and others are called upon, to share their experiences on the day's hottest topics. Keynote speakers have included thought leaders in motivation and leadership like the ever popular Brigadier General Nick Halley.

The attendance over the years has been remarkable, especially for an invitation only conference. The conferences have been held in at least eight different cities in the Carolinas with over 30 speakers. With approximately 3,000 people having attended the conferences since inception, it has become an event that many executives attend every year and even more, a key networking opportunity.

“I make it a point to attend the Executive Conference every year. In a half a day you can get the latest information from industry experts in the vital areas of accounting, management, law, surety and insurance, technology, and more. As our business has grown over the years, I know the conferences have helped to guide us along the way.”

John Barrow, President
Lyon Construction, Winston-Salem NC

A look back at the following topics from our past conferences shows that we addressed issues impacting the forefront of our industry.

- Succession Planning
- Claims Handling
- Legislative Overview
- Profitability Checkpoints
- Surety Update
- Documentation in the Workplace
- Tax Strategies
- Joint Ventures
- What All Contractors Need to Know about Mold
- The American Jobs Creation Act
- Managing Risk Through Technology
- Top IT Secrets of Top Performing Contractors
- Reducing Redundant Activities with Hand Held Workplace Computers

Jay Motsinger, Member-in-Charge of the Construction Practice Group and conference founder states,

“The Construction Executive Conference has become a vital part of how Dixon Hughes communicates with the industry that we serve. We have been told that we have made a big difference in the businesses that have attended. To us this is success. The relationships we have made with key business leaders and our conference partners are invaluable. We are putting our efforts into making the conferences better and bringing vital and up-to-date information to more and more business leaders.”

This year’s conference will be Wednesday, October 8 at the Pine Needles Lodge & Golf Club in Southern Pines, NC. The Dixon Hughes Construction Executive Conference is one of the best sources for up-to-date industry information that can make a huge difference when properly applied. To the alumni, we truly appreciate your participation over the years and look forward to seeing you at every conference. If you are reading about the conference for the first time and would like additional information or considered for invitation please pre-register here. All conference alumni are pre-registered.

To ensure compliance with requirements imposed by the IRS, we inform you that any tax advice contained in this communication (including any attachments) is not intended or written to be used, and cannot be used, for the purpose of avoiding penalties under the Internal Revenue Code.